Grammy-nominated South African musicians, Sharon Katz & The Peace Train, have been using their music to promote cross-cultural understanding and youth development in over 60 countries for the last 25 years. They originally formed a 500-voice youth choir to spread Nelson Mandela's message of peace and reconciliation. Ever since, selected members have traveled the world for workshops and performances; many have featured in the award-winning film, When Voices Meet.
